v.)
)	18 U.S.C. § 371
(1) JAMES CLAYTON WOLF, and)	18 U.S.C. § 1343
(2) ADAM CLIFFORD OLSON,)
Defendants.)

THE UNITED STATES GRAND JURY CHARGES THAT:

Background

1. At all times material to this indictment:
 - a. JAMES CLAYTON WOLF was a Minnesota resident. WOLF was certified as an organic farmer between not later than October 2014 and until at least June 2020.
 - b. ADAM CLIFFORD OLSON was a Minnesota resident. OLSON was certified as an organic farmer between not later than 2014 and until at least July 2021.
 - c. Crops farmed in the United States can be grown, harvested, and marketed in varying ways. When farmers utilize genetically modified seeds or fertilizer to speed up plant growth or to increase yield, such crops are described as “GMO” for “genetically modified organism.” A combination of regulations and industry standards affects the use and labeling of GMO crops.
 - d. Many crops are grown for human or animal consumption without genetically modified inputs but with the use of chemicals such as fertilizers, insecticides and preservatives; these crops are identified as “non-GMO” and comprise most of the grains used in food and animal feed.

- e. Organic crops are grown without the use of either GMOs or chemicals, following strict protocols relating to the planting, fertilizing, harvesting, storage, and transportation of the crops and the labeling of the consumer foods in which the grains are used. Because they are required for the production of organic foods and organic foods are more expensive in the consumer market, organic grains can be sold for a higher price than GMO or non-GMO grains.
- f. The National Organics Program (NOP) is the regulatory system implemented by the United States Department of Agriculture to ensure the integrity of the organic commodities market in order to protect consumers and bona fide organic farmers. The NOP utilizes a certification system for farmers who wish to market organic farm products.

The Scheme to Defraud

2. Between not later than 2014 and lasting until at least 2021, WOLF engaged in a scheme and artifice to defraud grain purchasers by selling them non-GMO grains falsely represented as being organic.

3. It was part of the scheme to defraud that WOLF repeatedly purchased non-organic corn and soybeans from a grain seller and resold the grain as organic product. In addition to falsely describing the grain as organic, WOLF concealed from the buyers that he did not hold a grain buyer license as required by law.

4. It was further part of the scheme that WOLF grew crops without adhering to organic farming standards, including for example using chemical fertilizers and pesticides, and sold the conventionally farmed crops as organic product.

5. It was further part of the scheme to defraud that WOLF provided buyers copies of his certifications under the National Organics Program.

6. The fact that the grain was not organic was material to the buyers, who would not have bought grains that were not organically farmed.

7. It was further part of the scheme to defraud that WOLF directed that some of the payments for the grain he sold be made to a third party, who spent the money for WOLF's benefit.

8. It was further part of the scheme to defraud that after WOLF's organic farming certification was revoked in 2020, WOLF and OLSON cooperated to sell non-GMO crops falsely described as organic.

9. WOLF and others assisting WOLF communicated with the grain supplier and with the buyers by means of interstate wire communication, including by telephone and e-mail. WOLF and his associates sent buyers documentation falsely describing the grain as organically grown.

10. As a result of the fraudulent scheme, WOLF and OLSON received more than $46,000,000 in payments from grain buyers.
